

The Shadow Machine

The Counterintelligence Operation Is More Dangerous than Described

My January 2018 article *Conspiracy Theory 101* described Mueller's investigation as a Counterintelligence Operation.

Now that the operation has an official name, Crossfire Hurricane, revelations being disseminated are that the operation is a creation of Democrats in the FBI and the CIA, and given public support by Democrats in the establishment media.

While politically motivated agents within the intelligence community interfering with a national election and sabotaging a President is exceptionally disturbing, what is really going on is more dangerous and more threatening.

The attack on Donald Trump is not a Democrat versus Republican thing. It is aimed specifically against Donald Trump mostly because of his economic policies. Trump's seeking less international conflict, championing American reindustrialization, proposing investment in infrastructure, establishing competitive international trading, and suggesting that each nation focus on its own growth is sharply contrary to the policies of many recent administrations and international institutions.

Someone who is a true threat to the status quo rarely makes it to the White House, and, if they do, as did Trump, once there they will not have a good time of it.

The media is an arm of the establishment and those that run it. The reporting on Trump is reflective of that fact. To the same degree that Donald Trump has been maligned and demeaned by the media, Barack Obama was complimented and lauded. This is the obvious reason for the facility with which Obama achieved the presidency and as President eluded being taken to task for the many illegal actions committed by his administration.

Obama's rise to sudden fame and his attacks on the social order have documented connections to George Soros. For Soros and other currency speculators, disruption yields economic instability and opportunities for making money when currencies fluctuate.

Obama's policies created greater disruption in the Middle East than Bush's policies, increased friction with Russia, and hampered American manufacturing. The financial ramifications have ties to Soros and his cronies at such entities as The City of London - those who have been prospering from derivatives based economics and a succession of growing and bursting economic bubbles around the globe.

The operation against Trump is backed by people more powerful than department heads and bureaucrats situated in what is being called the Deep State. An operation like this requires support from what is casually referred to as the establishment - or applying a name to it that more aptly reflects its aggressive nature - The Shadow Machine.

Understanding the grave danger presented by the operation against President Trump necessitates that we question our absolute belief that "the system" will ultimately protect our way of life; considering that it is "the system" that is destroying a presidency for the sake of continuing manipulation of the international economic system.

The timeline of the operation tells us that there is a watching eye over the political doings in the U.S.. For example, impeachtrump.org was created in July 2015, before Trump clinched the Republican nomination in May 2016 - which indicates that someone had contingency plans to take Trump down even before an "insurance policy" was being discussed in McCabe's FBI office in August 2016.

Previous operations underlaid with economic considerations were aimed against Mohammed Mosaddeq of Iran in 1953, Jacobo Arbenz of Nicaragua in 1954, Manuel Noriega of Panama in 1989, and Saddam Hussein of Iraq in 1991 and again in 2002. After Malaysia's economy was almost destroyed by currency speculation during the 1997 Asian financial crisis, PM Mahathir Mohammad defied IMF tight monetary and fiscal policies by increasing government spending and fixing the Ringgit to the US Dollar; and while successfully revitalizing the economy, he became the subject of severe public criticism by U.S. officials who praised the former finance minister who had supported IMF policies. Mahathir eventually had to leave office.

Obama supported the Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt and the radical regime in Iran. The attack on Muammar Khadafi of Libya in 2010 was against a newly created ally, whose questionable but stable regime was not welcomed by those behind Obama, much as Saddam's rigid but stable secular regime was not wanted by George Bush.

Involved in all of these happenings, to a much greater degree than simple cooperation between allies, is the British Secret Intelligence Service , and it is no coincidence that Cambridge professor Stefan Halper, a CIA operative, or Christopher Steele is involved in the Trump operation. Steele was an operative for British intelligence, which instigated the operation against Lyndon LaRouche beginning in 1982. LaRouche, a former presidential candidate, with a horrific media created image, and admittedly controversial ideas, was subjected to a counterintelligence operation almost identical to the one being carried out against Donald Trump, which included multiple investigations and prosecutions by Robert Mueller.

"...both men touched what has amounted to the third rail of American politics ... They threatened the post-War Anglo-American British imperial system. LaRouche did so directly, continuously, and explicitly by name. Trump has done so implicitly, by rejecting perpetual war, seeking better relations with Russia, calling for imposition of Glass-Steagall banking separation, endorsing what he refers to as the American System of political economy.

Conservative media has defined what is happening as a "silent coup" run by Democrats dissatisfied with the election results and wanting to overturn them. This description ignores the coup that should be discussed - the one that has already happened, and is running the country.

The attack on Trump, or anyone espousing Trump's ideas, is intended to stop a counter-coup. When Trump says he wants to take America back - even with his own special brand of political naiveté, he is a danger to the establishment that controls world economics.

The goal of Crossfire Hurricane aims at nothing more dramatic than creating an ineffective one term Trump presidency. His media fabricated public image is both a distraction and a means of attack. He need not be impeached nor driven from office - just sidelined and made to be seen as a buffoon.
