

BLINKERED AMERICA

Sweden's September 2018 national elections yielded a major political victory to Right Wing parties who advocate limitations on immigration, mirroring what recently happened in Germany and Italy. Yet, America's political news is being intentionally focused on the NYT's "Anonymous" story and on any other negative thing anybody can think of saying about Donald Trump. The real world of international politics wherein countries are fighting back against the Globalists continues almost unnoticed.

For those international forces attempting to solidify their economic stranglehold on the world through socio-political means, America's continued focus on its belly button is a blessing. It is still difficult to move Americans sufficiently to overcome their political inertia and accept the fact that the attacks on President Trump are only one aspect of the larger attack on America and the world. The harm done to America by the former President was not the aberrant behavior of some racist Marxist ideologue – but more so the implementation of the US element of the program to bring down Western Civilization for the economic benefit of "those who shall remain nameless" – or so it appears.

For example, the Iran Deal aided and abetted by the "RINO" Establishment has new meaning when looked at in connection with the statement by Iranian Foreign Minister Mohammad Zarif who said his government is "working 'closely' with George Soros' Open Society Foundations."

While President Trump is a major spokesman for a return to national sovereignty, he is only one voice. Other voices are being raised in countries ranging from England to Brazil. England's leaders are preparing to act on Brexit. But even as the Brits are going through the door, the exit has been challenged by George Soros' Open Society spawned group "Best for Britain."

The EU and its Globalists, are quite influential and play rough. You will notice that in all of the coverage of the Euromaidan riots in the Ukraine, the most significant aspect of the happenings was mis-reported. It was not that President Viktor Yanukovych was especially pro Putin – he was opposed to an EU controlled Ukrainian economy, and attracted by the better deals being offered by Russia. But, an "ironic" coordination by ostensibly opposing groups, the CIA and Soros' funded organizations put the pro-EU mobs in the streets and attacked Yanukovych for being a corrupt fascist. The message in the streets was all about a cool European lifestyle, the mob expressing no concern about the strangle hold that the EU was about to impose on Ukraine's economy – the same international / Globalist economic strangle hold that President Trump is fighting in the US. As for Soros, he is in the US, where he was able to produce street riots in cities like Ferguson and Baltimore, similar to the riots that we later saw in Ukraine. And with seeming impunity, he still continues to fund mini-riots by Anti-Fa and other mob style disruptions based on nothing more than how the wind was blowing that day.

But in Hungary his effect is being challenged with the passage of anti-Soros legislation; outlawing Open Society Foundation supported NGO's from sponsoring and funding immigration. Italy has joined with Hungary to promote tighter immigration controls across the EU. Sweden's poorly reported election this past Sunday yielded a victory to the Sweden Democrats, whose name is immediately followed by the phrase, "with ties to Nazism," though, as far as I know, unlike the barbs being thrown at President Trump, their leader, Jimmie Akesson, has not been called Hitler. But, the attacks are basically the same.

"Their roots are Nazi and we know what Nazism has done in Europe," Abdullahi, a member of the ex-Communist Left party, told AFP as he handed out ballots to families arriving at the polling station in a school in the mostly-immigrant populated Rinkeby."

The Sweden Democrats are Nationalists, (who long ago cleaned house of their "NAZI sympathizers). If they were to gain power they would bring about "Swexit," a Swedish exit from the EU. That is the real threat the SD Party poses for the Globalists. A similar threat for the Globalists exists in Brazil where the leading Presidential candidate Congressman Jair Bolsonaro has been labeled by the press as "far right" and a "controversial figure who has enraged many Brazilians for years with divisive comments." Just recently he was seriously wounded in a knife attack by a Socialist, and will be incapacitated until just before the election.

Reports of the existence of a world-wide attack on Western culture are usually reported in relation to terrorist attacks, but the underlying economic issues are mostly ignored. In this fight for Western Culture, there is the group of useful idiots, mostly Democrats who believe everything they read and have come to hate Trump because of the never ending rhetoric that is aimed at him 24 hours each day, and the group of dumb Republicans and Conservatives whose raison d'être seemingly is to prove that the Democrats are wrong.

Lost in this duality of nonsense is the agenda of the President, who clearly enunciated the Globalist problem in November 2016. The video attached to the embedded link to The Huffington Post was removed, as President Trump's speech was labeled "Anti-Semitic" because he mentioned people who are Jewish.

"The establishment has trillions of dollars at stake in this election," the GOP presidential nominee warns in the two-minute video. "For those who control the levers of power in Washington and for the global special interests, they partner with these people that don't have your good in mind."

As Trump says "levers of power in Washington," we see footage of George Soros, a billionaire investor and philanthropist. And when Trump says, "global special interests," Federal Reserve chairwoman Janet Yellen appears on screen."

But some people who understand the problem have tried to speak out. Richard Higgins, a former member of President Trump's National Security team, in May 2017 authored the Higgins Memo that brilliantly detailed an overview of the attacks against President Trump. Higgins was fired by former National Security Advisor HR McMaster soon after he posted the memo.

Sadly, he has not been brought back on board, which gives this writer great concern about a possible lack of focus on the international aspects of the attacks against the Trump White House.

The memo, which was summarily disparaged by every Left oriented media outlet, must be read by anyone interested in the nature of the fight we are in.
