

The Intelligence War - The Battle For Washington

Previously I wrote that the surveillance of Michael Flynn was not an isolated event, and that it was possible that Flynn was not a byproduct of an investigation, but the target; one of many by Barack Obama's team. I pointed out that President Obama had initiated a race data base, collecting information on more diverse groups than had ever before been done, intended to be used by Obama after he left office.

It was, and is, my position that obtaining a warrant for a FISA tap is an irrelevancy for Obama's purposes. Remember, law enforcement only needs a warrant if they intend to use gathered information in court. If your purpose for collecting information is collecting information, warrants becomes irrelevant.

Those who are focusing on what information may have been collected on Trump are focusing too narrowly. The information gathering issue is much larger. Once again, Larry Klayman of Judicial Watch has restated that he is representing a former NSA / CIA contractor who possesses volumes of evidence that NSA has secretly surveilled Supreme Court Justices and many influential businessmen, including Pre-Presidential Donald Trump..

But - there are other elements to this story.

Foremost - Trump is not stupid. He says what he feels he needs to say, and he is on a mission - make no mistake about that.

When Trump delivered the State of the Union Address, he said he was going to repeal and replace Obama Care. He didn't refer to the legislation as the Affordable Care Act. He was not subtle about rubbing Obama's face in the dirt. It was a warning shot across the bow - a warning not heeded. The Democrats attacked Jeff Sessions immediately after the very positive response to the speech.

President Trump did not read a web article on Friday, and become so upset, that two days later at 3:00 AM he was emotionally driven to tweet out his insult to Obama about his actions being low. Trump's tweet was an opening salvo against Obama. I don't believe Obama will disengage. Obama has many very wealthy men behind him. He has the press, and he has the mob in the street. And, he has the blessings of the anti-Trump establishment.

Mostly, he has Organizing for Action. Obama has established his Shadow White House, more accurately, his Black Ops Headquarters in Washington, and is preparing for combat.

Indivisible, an OFA supported group, printed the instruction manuals on how to interrupt congressional member's town halls across the country. OFA is a clearing house for all causes and people involved in the issues around which the Left coalesces. It will keep you up to date on legislation at every level of government, and all the candidates vying for seats in all of the state houses and senates and in all the Congressional Districts. It aims to duplicate what the Tea Party did. It is his organization intended to support a candidate for President of his choosing.

OFA has unlimited funding. It has a former President with a great personal following, and it has access to information on everyone and on everything. That is what the Organizer in Chief was doing for eight years, he was setting up his organization for when his term expired - and was no longer constrained by the parameters of the office, not that he was much constrained while he was in office.

What we have seen since Trump's election, the violent protests, the Russian scenario, the legal attack on Trump's immigration freeze and the slow rolling of approving cabinet members - are all improvised actions. Trump wasn't expected to win. Obama assumed he would have plenty of time to roll out OFA across the country. That's why he was so bold as to remain in Washington, which he believed would be friendly to him.

Make no mistake. There is a battle raging for control of America. Trump's election has forced Obama into delaying Trump as much as he can. Obama's forces are not yet fully deployed. And, the terrain ahead is rough. Bible hugging Americans are still armed. The Right is becoming energized. Businesses will be rehiring, and with good jobs and some leisure time, Americans will have time to get involved with issues. And, there are many more of them than there are brainwashed kids and paid agitators working for the Obama-Soros cartel.

At the moment, Donald Trump does not yet have a complete White House staff or Cabinet. Once Trump's Cabinet is filled, he will get rid of all of Obama's assistant and under secretaries that are still there sabotaging him - like the Assistant AG that publicly mutinied on his immigration freeze.

It appears that once Trump understood that Obama was the underlying problem, he attacked him, forcing Obama to engage, bringing the fight into the open - the way Trump likes to fight.

The Obama directive that allowed all of the intelligence agencies to view collected raw data, was an act of sudden necessity. Rather than having four years, Obama had four weeks to get what he could and hope enough moles would remain in place to help OFA - the real goal of the intelligence gathering.

Obama has a large trove of information he collected while in office, and he has moles in all branches and offices of the Federal Government. What he will not have going forward, if Trump's team can isolate and prosecute those responsible for the criminal leaks that have occurred, is access to new raw data and other confidential information.

Trump's arrival in Washington is nothing less than an invasion. Thus far it has been Obama's Left that has demonized Trump and been on the offensive. The Left in trying to knock Trump off of the beachhead by using their hidden intelligence assets, may have exposed their best weapon.

Trump's salvo of early morning tweets was just the beginning of his campaign to demonize Obama and bring the fight to him.
